Library Ready for Public Inspection

Camas is sure to be proud of its new library!

A preview of the beautiful new building yesterday found furniture being polished and moved into place, books going to their shelves, and every indication that the library will be fully ready for a gala "Open House" Friday afternoon and evening.

Swinging wide the handsome doors of the library building an impressive view of the center of the library is to be had. The "charging desk," where books are charged out and returned, is directly in front of the main entrance. Specially designed and built to fit Camas' needs, the big desk is a handsome piece of furniture, harmonizing with the tables, chairs and other new furnishings. To the back of it is the spacious "stock room," and a view of the balcony is also to be had through a graceful arch further distinguished by a superbly designed grillwork railing on the balcony.

Walls are "Sun" Color

Turning to the left, upon entering the building, one sees the spacious, well-lighted adult reading room with its soft, light "sun" color walls, "off-white" woodwork, and fine wood ceiling-panels. All new furniture, maple, of a rich, warm shade of brown, forms a charming contrast to the light color of the room. The tables and chairs are of special design to conform to the colonial architecture of the building. They are of sturdy construction but are not massive or heavy in appearance and are superbly built for comfort.

At the opposite side of the building is the children's room, newly equipped, also, but with greater variety. There are tiny chairs and a very low table for little tots. There are special "pocket" shelves for the smallest books, there's even a slanting top table, flanked by benches, where huge picture books, too heavy for small hands to hold, can be placed. Larger chairs and tables are there for older children.

At the open house Friday the following representatives of women's clubs will be hostesses: Mrs. Robert Teeson, Legion auxiliary; Mrs. Fred Stoller, B. P. W. club; Mrs. Reginald Haight, A. A. U. W.; Mrs. Marshal Powell, Woman's club; Mrs. B. L. Dailey, P. T. A. council; Miss Nora Self, library board, and Mrs. D. F. Olds, Mrs. V. C. Gault and Mrs. H. S. Clark, Woman's club committee in charge of arrangements.
